Saverio Luppino has graduated in law at the University of Bologna (Alma Mater Studiorum) on the 20.06.1990. He attended university courses abroad, mainly in Ireland, and he is enrolled in the Bologna BAR Association.

Later on, he improves his experience and professional skills in civil law, attending seminars and courses with specific interest in real estate, both on judicial and contractual aspects.

He lectured on behalf of public entities in the field of Real Estate and house rentals.

Giuseppe Luppino has graduated in law at the University of Modena in 1999. He attended most of his university and post-university studies and work experiences abroad, in France, Belgium, United Kingdom, Spain, Germany, Austria and Australia, within the framework of different European Programmes such as Erasmus, Leonardo da Vinci and European Voluntary Service.

After his graduation, he has been working for different international organisations, such as Amnesty International and United Nations. He attended several specialisation courses, i.e. the European Master's Degree in Human Rights and Democratisation as well as the International Trade Law post Graduate Course jointly organised by the European University Institute and the International Labour Organisation.

He provides assistance in the area of International and European law, with particular attention on applications before the European Court of Human Rights and United Nations Committees.
